Different countries in the developing world are at very different stages of development. Countries are often grouped together as if they were steps on a development 'ladder', such as in Rostow's model [Rostow's model: Rostow's model states that a nation's economic development occurs in five stages ...

Economic growth is the increase in the inflation-adjusted market value of the goods and services produced by an economy over time. It is conventionally measured as the percent rate of increase in real gross domestic product, or real GDP.. Growth is usually calculated in real terms - i.e., inflation-adjusted terms " to eliminate the distorting effect of inflation on the price of goods produced.
